

‘An hour out’

---

Do you sometimes wish you could talk to someone about what you do and don't believe, how you feel about church services, how you try to pray, what you'd like to understand about the Bible but never dared ask?

If you would like an hour's undivided attention from the vicar where you can say whatever you like—please get in touch with Richard Tulloch. This is one of the most important things that he can do in ministry—talk with people about their deepest feelings concerning faith.

Here are some guidelines to help the conversation

1. Decide beforehand what you want to discuss.
2. Only say what you want to say. You're in charge.
3. Be bold. Don't be left thinking 'If only I'd said..'
4. Start by talking about how your faith started and what's happened since.
5. Say what you really enjoy about your faith.
6. Say where you get frustrated and annoyed.
7. Say where you'd like help.
8. Ask if there's something you could read.
9. Remember the conversation is confidential.

Afterwards

Write down what you have learned.

‘An hour out’

---

Do you sometimes wish you could talk to someone about what you do and don't believe, how you feel about church services, how you try to pray, what you'd like to understand about the Bible but never dared ask?

If you would like an hour's undivided attention from the vicar where you can say whatever you like—please get in touch with Richard Tulloch. This is one of the most important things that he can do in ministry—talk with people about their deepest feelings concerning faith.

Here are some guidelines to help the conversation

1. Decide beforehand what you want to discuss.
2. Only say what you want to say. You're in charge.
3. Be bold. Don't be left thinking 'If only I'd said..'
4. Start by talking about how your faith started and what's happened since.
5. Say what you really enjoy about your faith.
6. Say where you get frustrated and annoyed.
7. Say where you'd like help.
8. Ask if there's something you could read.
9. Remember the conversation is confidential.

Afterwards

Write down what you have learned.

‘An hour out’

---

Do you sometimes wish you could talk to someone about what you do and don't believe, how you feel about church services, how you try to pray, what you'd like to understand about the Bible but never dared ask?

If you would like an hour's undivided attention from the vicar where you can say whatever you like—please get in touch with Richard Tulloch. This is one of the most important things that he can do in ministry—talk with people about their deepest feelings concerning faith.

Here are some guidelines to help the conversation

1. Decide beforehand what you want to discuss.
2. Only say what you want to say. You're in charge.
3. Be bold. Don't be left thinking 'If only I'd said..'
4. Start by talking about how your faith started and what's happened since.
5. Say what you really enjoy about your faith.
6. Say where you get frustrated and annoyed.
7. Say where you'd like help.
8. Ask if there's something you could read.
9. Remember the conversation is confidential.

Afterwards

Write down what you have learned.